Search operators.

These help you find the information you are looking for.

AND searches search for all the search terms, "sausages AND biscuits," (all documents containing both sausages and biscuits) while OR searches search for one term or the other, "sausages OR biscuits." (all documents containing either sausages or biscuits)

AND

Google defaults to AND searches automatically, so you don't need to type "AND" into the search engine to get that result.

OR

If you want to find one keyword or another, use the term OR. It's important that you use all caps, or Google will ignore your request.

To find all documents containing either sausages or biscuits, type: sausages OR biscuits. You can also substitute the | character for OR, so sausages | biscuits searches for the same thing.

Search operators.

These help you find the information you are looking for.

OR	Find pages that might use one of several words. Example: marathon OR race
#	Find popular hashtags for trending topics Example: #throwbackthursday
-	When you use a dash before a word or site, it excludes sites with that info from your results. This is useful for words with multiple meanings, like Jaguar the car brand and jaguar the animal. Examples: jaguar speed -car or pandas -site:wikipedia.org
"	When you put a word or phrase in quotes, the results will only include pages with the same words in the same order as the ones inside the quotes. Only use this if you're looking for an exact word or phrase, otherwise you'll exclude many helpful results by mistake. Example: "imagine all the people"
